

Reiter & Walsh salvaged a home and made it their castle

Jesse M. Reiter

PERSONAL INJURY – MEDICAL MALPRACTICE: PLAINTIFF

BLOOMFIELD HILLS

← BEFORE: “We literally saved our office from the wrecking ball nearly 20 years ago,” Jesse Reiter says. “The city was about to tear it down. An injunction was filed and demolition halted as the purchase was made. Overgrown with trees, inaccessible by main roads and in a state of disrepair that included burst pipes and walls down to bare studs, it was a diamond in the rough.”

↑ AFTER: “After our extensive renovations and customizing the building for the precise needs of our birth-trauma firm, the castle is now a jewel of the city.”

→
“We played up the castle theme during renovations and paid great attention to detail. One example is the lion’s crest above the fireplace. Others include stone walls, stained glass windows, fleur-de-lis carpeting and wallpaper, throne-like chairs, and wrought-iron lamps, chandeliers and sconces that appear candle-lit.”
